INDEPENDENT PEOPLE'S TRIBUNAL ON THE WORLD BANK GROUP IN INDIA

21 - 24 SEPTEMBER 2007

JAWAHARLAL NEHRU UNIVERSITY, NEW DELHI

PROGRAMME SCHEDULE

INTRODUCTION TO THE TRIBUNAL ON THE WORLD BANK GROUP IN INDIA

Over the past few years, several groups have systematically come together to closely monitor the World Bank's functioning in India, particularly in regard to its Country Assistance Strategy, review of social and environmental standards, its proposal of using Country Systems in lowering regulatory standards, etc.

As part of this process, it has been reconsidered its projects and approaches, it is time to examine and judge their claim to serving the wider public interest. It has been considered important to undertake a broad spectrum enquiry into the World Bank and the functioning of its allies and to review their impacts nationally. This is the origin of the Independent People's Tribunal.

The purpose behind the Tribunal is to critically analyse the impacts of the World Bank on India and to provide a forum for people who have faced the impact of projects and policies funded or promoted by the World Bank Group. The Tribunal is an opportunity to express their grievances and propose alternatives. In addition, the Tribunal hopes to raise a comprehensive national debate over neo-liberal economic policy at a time when the World Bank is being re-assessed from all quarters, including from within.

Given what seems to be the record of the projects funded and promoted by the World Bank in terms of human rights violations and environmental degradation and the feeble response of the World Bank and the Indian government to proposals and appeals by the people of India to

The Tribunal process in its current form began at the National Consultation on Housing and the Urban Poor held in Mumbai. At this conference, held in October 2005 where over two hundred groups participated, a call was issued to take forward this process. Since that time over 50 meetings have been held with groups, individuals and organizations, nationally, regionally and locally, to conceptualize and implement the Independent People's Tribunal on the World Bank in India.

This is the largest, most ambitious Tribunal of its kind to date. Over 700 people are expected to participate from all parts of India. Perhaps most amazingly, it is primarily a volunteer effort – with over 300 people dedicating their time. The analysis covers more than 120 topics to be presented by over 100 speakers from people's organizations, affected communities, and academicians.

THE WORLD BANK GROUP (WBG) is a global, intergovernmental organization whose stated purpose is poverty alleviation. In its 60 years of operations, it has disbursed approximately US$ 525 billion to developing nations, mostly in the form of loans. India has long been one of its primary clients; currently, it ranks among the top 4. The WBG loans money to national governments for projects (such as infrastructure development) and for macroeconomic policy “reform”. It also has an extensive research arm.

Since 1991, the process of neoliberalism has been greatly accelerated by new economic policies that have been ushered in by the Indian government under the garb of ‘structural adjustments’ ostensibly to rescue itself from financial disaster. These policies have been blueprinted by the World Bank and the IMF in response to the government’s request for sorely-needed foreign exchange loans.

Significantly, the earlier project-based role of the World Bank in India has moved to a much more powerful policy-based role.

Invariably, the worst sufferers of the degradation that is taking place are the most vulnerable sections of society – forest dwellers, fisher folk, labour, dalits, farmers, women, children, rural and urban poor.

The People’s Tribunal will assess the national impact of the World Bank and its allies on:

- 1) Vulnerable communities, including women, children, dalits, minorities, adivasis, workers, fish workers, and farmers;
- 2) The environment and human rights;
- 3) The World Bank’s agenda and whether it is largely influenced by transnational corporate interests;

- 4) The effects of financial indebtedness and loan conditionalities on social sectors (food, health and education), particularly in terms of poverty alleviation and reduction of inequality;
- 5) Transparency, corruption and accountability within the government, the private sector and NGOs;
- 6) Governance (role of bureaucrats, consultants and technocrats), sovereignty and democracy;
- 7) The impact of privatization across sectors

The Tribunal on the WBG and its allies is a collective process that is guided by organizations and groups from across the country. The Tribunal is thus structured:

1. Jury – Will hear the Depositions and render judgement. Made up of distinguished individuals from within and outside India jointly selected by the convenors, advisors and the secretariat.
2. Convenors and Advisors – Convenors are key groups/ grassroot organizations and movements who are responsible for a sector or region. They assist the participant groups in mobilizing affected people, putting together the depositions and in selecting the projects to be profiled. Advisors are individuals with expertise in the field who guide, help with the research and assist the process.
3. Endorsing/Participating Organisations
 - Large spectrum of groups/grassroot organisations who endorse and support the process.
4. Secretariat – Comprised of researchers and organizers who facilitate and support the process.
